MRS. TRACY'S LESSON.

Dinner time was approaching, but dinner dragged. Bridget had a way of forgetting the coal fire until it was so far gone as to require a lengthy petting up in order to be in time for cooking. Mrs. Tracy had to hurry to the kitchen and do her best to hasten things forward.

"Never mind," she said to herself, as she returned to the nursery, "Harvey will probably be late, too. He usually is. I'm glad for once."

But, to her dismay, Harvey was even then coming up the walk with a quick step.

"Dinner ready, I hope, Amy?" he said. "Business is pressing to-day."

"No, indeed, it is not," she said, with a cloud spreading over her face. "It really seems as though the only times you ever come punctually are the days when there is trouble in the kitchen."

It did seem so. Harvey was so habitually late at meal time that Mrs. Tracy felt justified in feeling very cross as she again went to the kitchen, and after fifteen minutes of exertion, which bore poor results in the ill-served dinner, seated herself, hot and worried, at the table, in a mood which would have prevented her enjoyment of a much better repast.

"Did you get good seats?" she asked, after the children had been helped.

"Seats? What seats? Bless me if I've had a thought of those seats since I went away this morning. I'm sorry, Amy, I'll step in on my way down."

"You needn't. Mrs. Rice was here a little while ago, and she said every good seat was taken two hours after the plan was opened."

"I've been more than usually bothered of late, Amy. I've been trying to make arrangements to get a safe for my office, for I have a good many valuable papers, and don't feel like risking them. Fussed all the morning, but still failed of it. But I'll get the tickets for to-morrow night."

"It will do no good. I had all my arrangements made for to-night, and I can't go out to-morrow night."

The manner was more ungracious than the words. Mr. Tracy looked appealingly at her as he expressed his real regret for the carelessness which had brought her such a disappointment. He had a very tender appreciation of the fact that his wife's cares were very pressing and burdensome. She seldom got out, and this missing of a fine musical entertainment was no light thing to her.

There was no response to his apologies. She was recalling the time, only a few weeks since, when he had promised to go out with her, then had become absorbed in business, sent her a hasty note to say he could not dine at home, and she had seen no more of him until half-past ten at night. It is not to be wondered at that the cloud on Mrs. Tracy's face deepened. It reflected itself on the faces of the three children, one of whom, after a few whimpers of discontent over the unsatisfactory dinner, was dismissed with sharp words from his mother.

"Well, well!" exclaimed Harvey a few minutes later, impatiently pushing away his plate, "if a man is to be treated like a criminal because he has forgotten some concert tickets, he'd better look for a pleasanter place than home."

He strode away, leaving her, with some reason, perhaps, to consider herself a very ill-used woman.

She was always busy about the house or always trying to bring up arrears of sewing. Intervals of leisure for reading or going out were rare, and always becoming rarer. She was willingly giving her best energies to the work of making the most out of small means, taking her full share in the struggle which her husband was carrying on to get a foothold in business. But she was forgetting that husband and children should not be left to live by bread alone—that they looked to her for something more valuable than the mere keeping of a house. She was many a time so wearied with her round of duties in the care of their bodies that she lost sight of their higher needs, not realizing that a smile or a cheery word from her could go far toward making amends for a much more serious household failure than a poorly cooked meal. Her face was rapidly taking on a look of combined anxiety and impatience, and she was forgetting the sweetness of loving forbearance toward little faults and shortcomings.

"Tug, tug, tug," she said, fretfully. "I'm tired of it all. Harvey has no more thought of me than if I were a pack-horse. How would he like it if I thought no more of his comfort than he does of mine, I wonder."

The fretful mood and the fretful expression, fast coming to feel at home by long indulgence, stayed by her as the hours wore on. The children looked inquiringly at her when occasion brought them in her way, but wisely made such occasions as few as possible. As the tea hour approached Mrs. Tracy would not have acknowledged to herself that her brow was taking on an added cloud at the prospect of her husband's return. He had left her in anger, after sinning against her so unpardonably, and need not expect to be pleasantly received.

If, however, he should come home early, she might relax a little toward him. But the hour came and passed without him, and Mrs. Tracy grew angrier. If he was staying away to punish her, he might stay as long as he liked—she would never care.

But as another hour passed she grew uneasy. With all his trying want of punctuality, Harvey never really missed a meal without sending her a word of explanation. It was already growing dark as she pressed her face anxiously against the window pane, when her little boy rushed in.

"O mamma! there's such a big fire down town. Can't I go and see it?"

She had heard an alarm an hour or two before, but paid little attention to it.

"No, of course you can't, Willie, it is too late for you to be out. But where is the fire?"

"I don't know, but it's a great, great big one, I know. Hear how the whistles blow—and see, the folks are running more and more."

She caught a few words from some passers by which brought a look of dismay to her face.

"The Phoenix block—and spreading fast. Trouble with water freezing in hose."

Breathlessly she ran into the house and threw on her wraps. Then, with a few words of direction to the servant girl, she took Willie's hand and hurried in the bitter cold of the fast closing winter night through the streets, becoming more and more crowded as they drew nearer the business precincts with others, whose faces were all turned in the same direction.

Her husband's office was in the Phoenix Block. A chill, deadlier than that of the inclement air, struck to her heart, as through her mind ran one after another dread imagination of what might be. She remembered his worry about the safe—how little she had heeded him in her selfish resentment over a little disappointment! Her steps quickened with a wild fear as she thought of the papers he had spoken of—she knew the first instinct of his faithful soul would be to peril his life for the safety of what others had confided to his care.

The crowd grew thicker as she neared the fire, until she could move only with difficulty as she still pressed on. They had not lived in the place for any length of time and the faces about her were all strange, until at length a familiar voice said:

"You here, Mrs. Tracy? This is no place for you."

She grasped the speaker's arm.

"Mr. Brand—do tell me! Is it serious? Is it the Phoenix?—and have you seen Mr. Tracy?"

His face was more troubled than he wished her to see as he tried to lead her away from the crowd.

"Well, a large fire is always more or less serious, you know. It began in the Phoenix——"

"I want to hear about it," she insisted, as he paused. "How are things there, now?"

"The fire went up the elevator shaft, so there has been difficulty in getting the occupants. But I do assure you, Mrs. Tracy, that no lives are known to be lost. The last I saw of Mr. Tracy he and the other lawyers were working like beavers trying to get out their belongings."

"When was that?" she gasped.

"Perhaps an hour ago."

"I'm going to get nearer," she said, and, as her friend could not dissuade her, he took her arm and they slowly worked their way toward the large building to which the fire was now confined.

It was a strange and magnificent sight. Winter had laid his pitiless finger on every attempt to interrupt the progress of the ruin, seeming to rejoice in promoting the advance of the fire-fiend. All the noble enginery of the fire department was in full play, but many a bursted hose had been thrown aside, and other difficulties from clogging ice in every direction were continually arising. The tall, partly fallen walls of the brick building were sheeted with ice, which shone and sparkled in the gas-light like the famed Russian palace, and against which many a stream of water fell in rattling hail. Banks of ice, from leaking hose, lay across the streets, while around the burning building lay a piled-up mass of ice, mingled with books, carpets, and furniture, which had been thrown out, to the depth of ten or twelve feet.

The fire was by this time, however, well under control, and painful interest was now centered upon the perilous condition of a man who could be seen through the window of one of the upper stories.

"That is the old watchman of the building," exclaimed Mrs. Tracy's escort; "he is not in any immediate danger, but it will be difficult to reach him, and it is feared he may loose his head and fall. Some other men are on a balcony around the corner, not far below him—they are positively in no danger as yet, but I heard some one say that they were refusing to be helped down until the old man is safe—are doing all they can to encourage him. Mr. Tracy may be among those."

To Mrs. Tracy's eyes there must be danger. Brick and portions of the wall were continually falling. And Harvey might not be there—nobody could know certainly where he was. No lives are known to be lost—that was how her friend had phrased it.

The falling of a portion of the roof drove back lookers-on and workers in a confused crowd.

"Do go home, Mrs. Tracy," urged Mr. Brand. "You can do no good by staying; you are risking your health and the child's too. I will surely see that you have the very first news of Mr. Tracy that can be secured."

Her teeth were chattering and her whole frame shivering, although she had not realized that she was cold. She felt that she could not go, but, after a glance at little Willie, who would not complain, she allowed herself to be persuaded.

Arrived at home, she was thankful for the care demanded of her by the sleepy children. But in due time the clamor of the little voices was hushed and then nothing remained for her but to pace restlessly to and fro—now feeling as though another moment of suspense would drive her wild, now shrinking in dread from the thought of what the end of that suspense might be.

He had left her in anger. She had, in her pettishness at his forgetfulness, refused him look or smile; she had been harboring bitter thoughts against him while he was exposed to danger, perhaps death. How far she had gone aside from the ideal she had formed of her duties as a true wife! how far failed in making for him the sunshiny home they had long ago pictured! And now, what if she should never more have opportunity to show him how dearer to her than all else on earth was his happiness and that of their children?

In her misery it seemed that hours had passed before she heard a footstep at the door. And then she sprang up in terror. Was it his step or that of another, come to tell her—?

"Amy—at last. Poor wife, did you think I would never come? But don't come near me yet, dear!"

But she clung to him for a moment, and then stood back in amazement at his appearance. Smoke-begrimed, drenched, and with ice clinging to his dress and hair—she would not have known him except for his voice. As she hastily brought him dry clothing and hot coffee, he gave her an outline of his experience for the past few hours.

"It was a tight place we were caged in," he said, in concluding—"freezing on one side and almost burning on the other. But we got the poor old man safe at last, and all my papers are safe."

"And would you really weigh any kind of property against your life, Harvey, even though it might belong to other people? Is that all you care for us here at home?"

"Well, Amy," he said, smiling at her half anger, "if it were deliberately placed before me to choose, I might, perhaps hesitate; but when all of a sudden you find that a sacred trust is in danger, what remains but to use your best endeavor, even though there may be risk in it, with faith in the kindly and powerful arm which has brought me out of it?"

His voice had taken on a reverent tone, and she could not say he was not right.

But she lay down to rest with a great thankfulness in her heart that she could yet reach him with looks and tones of affection, and an earnest prayer that the lesson of the last few hours might not soon grow dim and be forgotten.

Hair Growing on the Dead.

McCONNELLSTOWN, Pa. Oct. 9.—Two years ago William A. Walters was buried in the stone Chapel Cemetery, in Woodcock Valley, Huntingdon county. The other day the body was exhumed to Williamsport for reinterment. When the coffin was reached by the diggers they discovered that it had sprung at the joints, and out of the crevices the hair on the skull protruded in all directions. On opening the casket the hair on the head was found to measure eighteen inches, the whiskers eight inches, and the growth on the breast six inches, notwithstanding the body had been cleanly shaved when prepared for burial. A similar instance occurred in 1882 at the Cassville Cemetery, fifteen miles from here. Upon exhuming the remains of Jacob Cresswell, the skeleton, which had been buried for ten years, had hair on it ten or twelve inches in length and as firm as during life.

"Oh! yes," said madam, after the usual domestic racket had got itself well under way, "oh yes, you gentlemen want your wives to be angels!" "Not at all," replied Mr. Duesnberry, wiping the dish water from his head and face, "not at all, but we want them to be ladies." And then the row began all over again.

Tricks on the Track.

Danger from which Engineers Save the Public and Themselves.

[From The Railway Review.]

One who is accustomed to railway traveling can scarcely realize how much he is dependent for safety upon the engineer. Added to the responsibility of their station, engineers are also in constant danger of accidents caused by the tricks of jealous rivals. This rivalry, it is said, sometimes prompts to the doing of utterly mean tricks. A Nickle Plate engineer after his very first trip was laid off because he had "cut out" all the bearings of his engine. He was reinstated, however, after he proved that some rival had filled his oiling can with emery. Another new engineer was suspected for burning out the flues of his boiler. Through grief at the loss of his position he died, and then a conscience stricken rival confessed that he had put oil in the tank so that it foamed and showed water at the top gauge when in reality there was scarcely a quart in the boiler!

These intense jealousies, together with the terrible anxiety incident to their work, has a terribly straining effect on the nerve, and statistics tell us that, though Locomotive Engineers may look strong and vigorous, they are not all a hearty class. Ex-Chief Engineer A. S. Hampton, Indianapolis, Ind., (Div. 143) was one of those apparently hearty men, but he says: "The anxiety, strain and jolting came near finishing me."

The Locomotive Engineers' Brotherhood has 17,000 members and 240 divisions. Its headquarters is in Cleveland, Ohio, where Chief Engineer Arthur for twenty years has exercised almost dictatorial sway. It was organized in August, 1863, by the employes of the Michigan Central. It has given nearly two million dollars to the widows and orphans of deceased members.

Smith Had Misjudged Her.

There were half a dozen of them holding down as many chairs in a suburban drug store the other evening, when the talk changed to tramps, thieves and burglars, and Smith said:

'Well, now, but I'd like to try an experiment. I am a little skittish about these desperadoes, and Mrs. Smith knows it and takes advantage to brag about her own courage. She says she'd just like to find a tramp on the door step who refused to dust when she ordered him to.

'Well?' asked one.

'Well, suppose one of you rig up and go to the front door and demand something to eat, and be mighty impudent about it. It will give her a scare and stop her bragging.'

The crowd fell in with the idea and one of the men donned an old hat and coat and fixed up as a tramp. Ten minutes later he was knocking at the side door, while Smith and his friends were posted across the street.

It wasn't over two minutes after the tramp's first knock before he come out of the yard. He came over the fence. He was in such a hurry that he ran thirty rods before he could bring up. When Smith and the others reached him he had his hat off and was feeling of his head and gritting his teeth to keep back a groan.

'Well' said Smith, 'what did you do?

'Told her I wanted a hot supper p. d. q.'

'And what did she say?'

'She asked whether I would have bone turkey or fricassed chicken, and while I was trying to make up my mind she kicked me on the shin, struck me on the head with a club, and pushed me off the steps all at the same time.'

And every one of the group looked back and saw Mrs. Smith on the walk in front of the house, apparently waiting for somebody's return, and each man gasped out:

'Well, I'll be kazooed!'

BRIEF AND TO THE POINT.

"Been to Washington?"
"Yes."
"See Cleveland?"
"Yes."
"Did he 'point you?"
"Yes."
"What to?"
"Door."

'Did you see White strike Brown?'

'Can't be sure of it. The only thing I'm sure of, mister lawyer, is that my old woman came out with a pail of hot water and licked the hull crowd and had over two quarts left fur next time.'

Rules for Health.

The Philadelphia board of health have issued these hints in pamphlet form for distribution:

"Thorough ventilation of dwellings is essential to the health of the occupants. Observe strict cleanliness in your person and clothing. Bathe daily, if you have the convenience; if not, wash freely with cold water every day. Change your undergarments daily, or as frequently as your circumstances will admit. Be moral, regular in your habits of life, meal, exercise and sleep. Be careful to dress comfortable for the season, avoid the night air as much as possible, and when thus exposed put on an extra garment, and do not go into the night air when in a state of perspiration. Be careful to avoid the use of alcoholic drinks. Do not suppose that their use will prevent the recurrence of disease. On the other hand, those who indulge in the custom are always fair subjects for disease, and when attacked the intemperate are particularly in a condition to offer feeble resistance.

"Live temperately, live regularly, avoid all excesses in eating crude, raw and indigestible food, especially cabbage, salad, cucumbers and unripe fruit. A greater safety will be secured by boiling all water used for drinking purposes. Partake of well-cooked beef and mutton, rice well boiled, and avoid pastry and laxative fruit. Take your meals at regular seasons, neither abstaining too long at a time nor indulging too frequently. An overloaded stomach is as much to be dreaded as an empty one. Avoid bodily fatigue and mental exhaustion. Let all exciting causes be avoided. If you impress or impair the vital forces it is prejudicial to health. By excitement or violent exercise you increase the susceptibility of the system to disease.

"During the prevalence of cholera do not neglect even the slightest diarrhœa, no matter how painless at first."

Dr. Blister Gets Mad.

Kosciusko Murphy will not send for Dr. Blister in case of sickness. Dr. Blister was bragging about his profession and complaining that it was not properly appreciated.

"That's so; I don't think the press treats you doctors right," said Murphy.

"You are correct, sir. We get all manner of abuse from these would-be humorists of the press. Almost every paper contains some slur at the doctors."

"It is not the editor's sins of commission as much as it is his sins of omission that I am alluding to now. I refer to the outrageous manner in which you are systematically neglected."

"Neglected!"

"Yes, neglected. When a man is married the newspapers invariably give the name of the clergyman who performs the ceremony, but when he dies the name of the doctor who attends him is usually omitted in the obituary notice. The doctor does as much to facilitate things as the preacher, so I don't see why he is snubbed in that way."—Texas Siftings.

THERE WAS a case of assault and battery before one of the justices the other day, and a witness with a black eye, several strips of court plaster across his nose and one ear badly lopped over, was asked by the defendant's lawyer if he saw Brown strike White.

'Can't say as I did, he replied.

'Did you see the whole affair?'

'Mostly.'

'Well, how was it?'

'Well, Smith and me sot on the rear talkin' evolution. Jones and Green sot on the grass talkin' religion. Brown and White sot by the edge of the straw-stack disputin on politics. Three or four boys was in the barn gettin' up a dog fight.'

'Yes—go on.'

'Fust I know'd, somebody called somebody else a liar. Next I know'd evolution, religion, politics and fighting dogs was a-rolling over each other on the grass, and every man kicking and biting and hitting away for all he was wuth.'

'But did you see Brown strike White?'

'Can't say as I did.'

The Depth of It.

"How deep is that hole?" asked an anxious inquirer of a laborer digging a well.

"Don't know; never measured it," was the none-of-your-business style of reply.

"How far would I go if I should fall in?" was the next question.

"To the bottom, I reckon, if you're heavy enough to sink," and the questioner didn't pursue his investigations.

Arbor Day in the Schools.

(Circular to Superintendents.)

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION, HARRISBURG, Sept. 28, 1885.

DEAR SIR: The general observance of Arbor Day on April 16, in response to the proclamation of His Excellency, Governor Pattison, was most gratifying. Many thousand trees were planted, whose grateful shade and luscious fruit will add enjoyment to the lives of tens of thousands in years to come.

In some parts of the State, however, the ground was still frozen or otherwise in unfit condition for the planting of trees, while in many localities the schools had already closed. That the schools of the entire State of Pennsylvania may all have opportunity to begin this good work during the current year, we name Thursday, October 29, proximo, as a School Arbor Day, on which Shade Trees, Shrubs, Vines, &c., shall be planted by schools upon their school-grounds under the general direction and encouragement of Boards of Directors, Superintendents, and Teachers; on which also Fruit Trees, Shade Trees, &c., shall be planted about their homes by the individual pupils—boys and girls—by the teachers, and by all others who may be sufficiently interested in this important work.

The following suggestions from the Arbor Day circular of March 31 are equally in order for this Fall observance of the day:

"Select mainly such trees for planting on school-grounds as grow well in your immediate vicinity—maple, hickory, walnut, sweet-gum, dogwood, buttonwood, ash, bass-wood or linden, birch, beech, locust, willows, tulip-trees, pines, larches, firs, and others too numerous to mention. For shrubbery and vines: Mock-orange, spireas, the burning bush, deutzia, lilacs, wigelia, hardy roses, honeysuckles, Virginia creeper, wistaria, the tecoma, and others, which will give variety and greatly increase the attractiveness of the school-building and its surroundings of grass plot and greenery.

"As to the exercises of Arbor Day, these may be quite informal, if that shall seem best—the essential purpose being the planting of Trees, Shrubs and Vines. But it will be eminently proper, where arrangements can readily be made for a formal programme, to make this also a prominent feature. The reading of a selection from the Bible, prayer by a clergyman of the neighborhood, readings, recitations and songs by the pupils, an address by the teacher or other citizen of the district interested in the work of the day, will afford variety and serve to render the occasion more interesting and impressive.

"Let every teacher organize his school for the work, and, in consulation with the Directors, have the grounds properly prepared, and holes ready for Trees, and Shrubs, and Flowers, and Vines. Solicit the co-operation of the whole neighborhood. Should the day appointed prove inclement and unfit for the work, postpone it until the following Saturday. How the superintendent may be best able to communicate instructions to all his teachers must be left to his own good judgement. We would suggest the use of the local press as far as possible."

For additional suggestions as to planting and programmes for the day, see issues of the Pennsylvania School Journal for March, April, and May, 1885.

It is hoped that the encouragement of tree planting by individual pupils, as well as by schools in their collective capacity with proper school exercises—in a word, How to render most effective the observance of Arbor Day by the schools—may find a place on the programme of every County Institute held in Pennsylvania during the present season. It is suggested also, in this connection, that not less than two hours of the time of the Institute be given to the consideration of this very practical educational topic, in such manner as, in the discretion of the Superintendent, shall seem best. In order that the State Superintendent may have the proper data from which to make definite report of the results of Arbo Day work for the year, he will be pleased to receive by December 1 from each County, City, and Borough Superintendent a statement approximating as closely as possibe the number of trees, &c., planted within his jurisdiction at any time during the year as a result of the appointment of the day.

Very respectfully,
E. E. HIGBEE,
Supt. Public Instruction.

DEMOCRATIC STATE TICKET.

FOR STATE TREASURER,
CONRAD B. DAY,
OF PHILADELPHIA.

DEMOCRATIC COUNTY TICKET.

For Jury Commissioner—JOHN ROAN,
For Coroner—Dr. H. K. HOY.

DAY's candidacy for the state treasury is a case where the office seeks the man, not the man the office.

THE democratic ticket in Pennsylvania in short is—Conrad B. Day, an honest business man for a position of trust and business.

BY getting out a full vote, Pennsylvania's democracy will elect Conrad B. Day, on the 3rd of next month. Bear this in mind, democrats, and work for success.

OHIO's state election, on Tuesday of last week, resulted in a republican victory. Judge Foracker was elected governor with a plurality of about 19,000 over Hoadly. Dr. Leonard, the temperance candidate, received about 25,000 votes, which is more than the prohibitionists ever before had in the state. The legislature is republican by a majority of 3 on a joint ballot. The result is no disappointment to democrats, as Ohio, like Pennsylvania, is a republican state, and the election of a democrat can only be expected under extraordinary circumstances. The constitutional amendment, changing the time for elections from October to November, was carried.

IN nearly all elections so far, the democracy of this county has proved itself wide awake and willing to do its full duty. We hope it will not be found wanting in this fall's battle, but advance in close ranks and assist in the election of our excellent candidate, Conrad B. Day, by a strong vote. Our state chairman, W. U. Hensel, is confident of success, provided all democrats make it a point to cast their ballots for Day next Tuesday a week. See to it that you and your neighbors are at the polls, and do not rest until you are assured that a full vote has been cast in your community for an honest and upright man and against a corrupt and unfit political boss.

Against Quay.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 16.—The Republicans and Independents opposed to the election of Colonel M. S. Quay to the office of State Treasurer, have sent out over 5,000 circular letters to Republicans throughout the State. At the headquarters a couple of clerks are engaged in sending out mail matter, and during the next two weeks the gentlemen interested in the movement to defeat Colonel Quay expect to do a great deal of work. Letters are being received from parties expressing sympathy with the efforts that are being made, the writers promising their aid. A circular will be sent out indicating three ways in which to defeat the Republican candidate: 1st, for Republicans to remain away from the polls; 2nd, to vote a blank for the office of State Treasurer; and 3rd, to vote for Conrad B. Day, the Democratic candidate.

The New Tax Law.

The people of Pennsylvania would do well by an early and careful study of the new tax law passed by the recent Legislature and approved on the 30th of June last. It works a radical change in the taxation of personal property, not so much in the fundamental system of taxation as in the stringent methods by which it is administered and enforced.

By the new law all mortgages, money owing by solvent debtors, all agreements bearing interest, except notes or bills for work or labor done or obligations given to banks for loans, and all public loans or stocks, except State or National or Building Association, and all money loaned or invested in other States, are now taxable at the rate of three mills on the dollar for State purposes and they are by the same law "exempt from all taxation except for State purposes." This three mill tax covers all bank, saving fund, safe deposit, guarantee and every form of financial stocks. All stages, omnibuses, hacks, cabs and any other vehicles used for passenger hire, also pay a three mill tax on their value, and all annuities over two hundred dollars, except those granted by the State or National government, pay a like tax.

The radical change in the method of enforcing the new tax law consists in requiring every citizen to make return under oath of all mortgages and other investments or incomes made taxable, and in case of refusal to make return under oath, the assessor is required "to make return for such taxable person, estimating the amount from the best information at his command, to which estimated return the proper County Commissioners or Boards of Revision shall add fifty per centum and the aggregate amount so obtained shall be the basis of taxation." Such return may be corrected on or before the day fixed for appeals from assessments, only by the taxable person presenting good reasons under oath for the failure to make the return.

Our tax system in Pennsylvania has been very loose and inefficient so far as it related to personal property and money at interest, and the result has been that only a very small proportion of the money at interest pay any tax at all. Under the new law there can be no evasion of the lawful tax without absolute perjury, and there is a dangerous as well as disgraceful method of evasion. The new law was necessitated by a recent decision of the Supreme Court, by which a large amount of revenue would have been lost in corporation bonds without a remedial statute.—Times.

Judge Foraker to Stump New York.

NEW YORK, October 17.—Judge Foraker has accepted an invitation by the Republican State committee to stump the State of New York for Davenport.

Dr. White's New Office.

HARRISBURG, October 16.—The Governor to-day appointed Dr. J. William White Trustee of the Eastern Penitentiary, in place of Mr. Harrison, deceased. A large number of letters had been written to the Governor requesting his appointment.

"John Ploughshare" Against Quay.

Alfred Sharpless, one of the most intelligent Republican of Chester county, widely known by his terse and vigorous writings over the nom de plume of "John Ploughshare," sends the following note to the Local News of West Chester:

Mr. EDITOR—In your edition of the 12th you copy from the Philadelphia Press as an item of news, from a Media correspondant, a communication in which it is stated that the Republicans of the county are "practically united, and a majority of those who have formerly acted with the Independents have declared for the whole ticket." Now, this is not true, and if Mr. Cooper is placing any reliance upon such information he will be badly left. But he is not doing so, for our state ticket and that thousands of earnest Republicans will let it go by default, if they do not vote directly against it. A number of active Republicans from both Chester and Delaware counties, who have never been identified with any Independent movement, have asked me "what shall be done with a ticket that is so distasteful to our sense of duty, and so injurious to the interests of our party?" My advice has been to go and do what you think is honest and right, let the consequences be what they may. Do your own thinking and voting and you will be better satisfied with yourselves if not with the results. It is discouraging that our grand old party with its noble principles should be brought so near to ruin for the sake of keeping a few machine roosters, who can never be satisfied, in fat offices all their days. In the interest of truth and honesty.

Yours,
JOHN PLOUGHSHARE.

Jack Laporte Goes to the Penitentiary.

HUNTINGDON, Pa., Oct. 16.—The motion for a new trail for Jack Laporte, who was convicted here last month of murder in the second degree, was argued to day, each of the seventeen reasons filed in support of the motion being forcibly dwelt upon by counsel, especially for the defense. The Court, after hearing the arguments attentively, overruled the motion and sentenced the prisoner to the penitentiary for six years.

The New York park commissioners have formally set aside a portion of Riverside park for General Grant's tomb. It embraces a plot 650 feet long and 250 feet across at its widest part, the temporary vault being 150 feet from the northern boundary and at the point of its greatest width.

Drunken Men Who Fooled With a Gun.

HAZLETON, Oct. 16.—Three intoxicated young men, named Robert Fichter, Edward Burtley and Thomas Scott, were handling an old gun here this afternoon and Burtley loaded both barrels with a heavy charge of powder and shot. In attempting to put on a cap the hammer of the gun fell and the cap was exploded. The barrels, being overcharged, burst and one of the flying pieces of iron entered Ficter's head. He ran about thirty yards and then dropped dead in the road. Scott was terribly cut about the head and face and body and is not expected to recover. Burtley's right arm was so badly mangled that it had to be amputated and he was otherwise injured, his face being badly burned.

Fatal Meeting With a Panther.

BIGLER, Pa., Oct. 15.—Boon's Mountain has been the scene of a thrilling and fatal hunting adventure. Two young trappers, named Albert Archer and Richard Anson, while on the Clearfield side of the mountain, heard the cry of a panther. Archer went in the direction of the animal, leaving his companion to follow. Reaching a clearing in the forest, Archer came upon the feline. Before he could raise his rifle the cougar pounced upon him and inflicted such terrible injuries with its teeth and claws that, upon the arrival of Anson, Archer was dead. Anson fired several shots at the retreating creature, but none of them took effect. The lumbermen have organized a hunting party, and a rigorous search will be made for the panther.

Chinese Flocking East.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 18.—For thirty days past many Chinese have been passing through this city in parties of from 5 to 20 on their way east. Yesterday morning a half dozen Chinese, all of the better class, arrived at the Union Depot from Chicago, and left a few hours later for Philadelphia, Boston and New York. A rather venerable looking Mongolian, who seemed to be chaperoning the rest of the party, told a reporter in excellent English that he and his friends had left a more or less lucrative laundry business in San Josa and San Francisco because their lives were threatened by the very man whose shirts they washed. They all had a little money saved and were going to locate in the east. It is estimated that over 500 Chinamen have passed through Pittsburg in their flight from the west since September 20. About 5 per cent. of them have got over their scare and gone back.

—A patent has just been issued for an apparatus to run sewing machines, which, it is claimed, does away with the fatiguing treadle. The motive power is an ordinary clock spring, so arranged as to give any desired speed by pressing the foot on the rest. A few moments winding up will supply sufficient power in the motor to run a machine twelve or fifteen hours.—Ex.

—Deininger's Ready Reference Tax Receipt Book is growing in public favor. Customers from a distance are beginning to call for it. It is an admitted necessity for every tax-payer who does his business in a practical manner. It is arranged to last for ten years and sells at the low price of 40 cents. Call and see it at the JOURNAL Store. tf

—Another new paper, named the "Fountain" issued its first publication in Bellefonte last Saturday. It is to be a weekly paper, containing fifty-six reading columns, filled with stories, news, fun, and a sermon by Rev. T. De Witt Talmage. Newspapers seem to pay in Bellefonte. This makes the fifth weekly printed in that town.

The name of the publishers of the "Fountain" is not given.

FIRE AT CENTRE HALL.—On Monday morning, about one o'clock, the stable of Mr. D. C. Keller, the ex-treasurer of this county, was discovered to be on fire. Two horses, three cows and one calf perished in the flames. A treadpower was also destroyed. The building was entirely consumed. Both Mr. & Mrs. Keller were from home when the fire occurred. The loss is covered by some insurance.

—The postmaster at Hastings, Nebraska, writes to the postmaster of Reading, Pa., under date of August 24, 1885, as follows: "Will you inform any parties within the reach of the delivery of your office by the name of Wolfe, that there was one George Wolfe, died at McCook, Neb., on the 10th inst., of typhoid fever, and he has left some property. Papers in Pennsylvania requested to copy. Address, William S. Hammonds, Hastings P. O., Nebraska.

—The rather hasty committal of young Frank Foote to the county jail the other day, for a little transgression of the seventh commandment, was not approved of by a majority of our citizens. Much worse deeds committed by grown men before this were left go unpunished and there is no need of crushing the whole future of an orphan boy by undue severity.

Frank was released from prison through the efforts of Dr. J. F. Harter, in whose charge the boy will remain for the present.

PRINTERS' INK.—Whether black or colored, it will pay any business man, who uses it judiciously. This week's Supplement of the JOURNAL, printed in red, shows that D. S. Kauffman & Co., our wide awake merchants on Main street, understand the value of advertising, and their investments in this direction are returned tenfold by an ever-increasing trade. A close examination of their proclamation, arranged alphabetically, will convince our readers that they are prepared to meet the wants of all.

—Judge Furst, of this district, in sentencing a young man to the penitentiary at the late term of the Huntingdon county court, said: "There is no crime that the court looks upon with more disapprobation than the crime of young men carrying hidden weapons and then getting drunk and attacking citizens whenever they get an opportunity, and we warn you and others who are indulging in this practice that it must be stopped." This warning is needed in other counties as well as Huntingdon.—Watchman.

SOMETHING WORTH KNOWING.—Mr. J. B. Fisher, of Penn Hall, returned from Philadelphia, where he has purchased a large stock of Dry Goods, Notions, Clothing, Boots & Shoes, Hardware, Queensware, &c., which he is now opening and which he will take pleasure in showing to his many friends and customers. They will find his stock a splendid assortment of goods, which he proposes to sell at bottom prices. Therefore go and call at his popular stand and you will be sure to get good bargains.

—OCTOBER is a good month for merchant to examine their stock of Dr. Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine and include a winter's supply in their next order. The people have found out by experience that it can be relied on in all cases of croup, whooping-cough, colds, and lung troubles of any nature, and will have it. A good article draws trade while worthless preparations drive it away. It should be a source of satisfaction to a dealer as well, to know he is giving good honest value for money received. —An unpleasant shooting incident occurred at Centre Hall on Monday evening, on the premises of Mr. Jacob Solt. Mr. Wasson, the marble cutter, who is a boarder at Solt's house, retired to the back yard, when Mr. Solt mistook the gentleman for a large dog he had been watching for several days with a loaded gun, and emptied the load of shot into Mr. Wasson's face and body. Our informant tells us that Mr. Wasson's wounds fortunately are not serious, but very painful.

—DRUGGISTS all report a rapid and steadily increasing demand for McDonald's Celebrated Worm Powder. There is no secret or trick about their popularity. It is solely because people have become convinced through trial or hearing their neighbors say that they are the best and easiest to take vermifuge ever produced. Nasty, sickening, old-fashioned wormseed syrups won't sell. People demand McDonald's Celebrated Worm powders, and won't have anything else, hence their sales are greater than all the other vermifuges combined. Money refunded to dissatisfied purchasers.

It is probably inconsistent to write of great enterprises and success under the heading of briefs, but since there was an attempt to make its existence brief, I may be excused in referring to J. C. Motz's lightning-cider press. One must be stupid indeed, not to appreciate the business aspect it has brought to Woodward. It is not an unusual sight to see eight wagons loaded with apples waiting their turn. Some days they press as high as twenty-five hundred gallons, and still this is not the full extent of its capacity. ARGENTI.

A Family Blessing.

Nothing adds more to the security of life, of happiness and health, than a safe and reliable family medicine. Simmons Liver Regulator has won for itself the appellation of "the favorite home remedy." It is adapted to a large proportion of the emergencies which occur in domestic life. If the child has the colic, it is a sure, safe and pleasant remedy. If the father is exhausted, overworked, debilitated, it will restore his failing strength. If the wife suffers from dyspepsia, low spirits, headache, it will give relief. If any member of the family has eaten anything hard of digestion, a small dose of the Regulator will soon establish a good digestion. It gives refreshing sleep where narcotics have failed. It is the best preventive medicine, and safe to begin with, no matter what the attack; and in almost every case will afford relief and effect a speedy cure without the aid of other medicine. No error to be feared in administering; no injury from exposure after taking; no change of diet required; no change of habits; no neglect of duties or loss of time. Simmons Liver Regulator is entirely vegetable and is the purest and best medicine compounded. Prepared by J. H. ZEILIN & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., sole proprietors.

AYER'S Hair Vigor cures baldness. Hair Vigor restores youthful freshness and color to faded and gray hair. It attains these results by the stimulation of the hair roots and color glands. It rejuvenates the HAIR and cleanses it. It restores to the HAIR that, either by reason of age or diseases of the scalp, has become dry, harsh and brittle, a pliancy and glossy silken softness of extreme beauty. There is no dye in Ayer's Hair VIGOR and the good it does is by the it imparts to the follicles, and the cleanliness and healthfulness of the condition in which it maintains the scalp.

AYER'S Hair Vigor renews the hair. Hair Vigor is the best cure known for Brashy Hair, Scald Head, Itching Humors, Tetter Sores, Torpid Follicles, and all other diseases of the scalp that cause the falling of the HAIR and its fading. Nothing cleanses HAIR of the nuisance of dandruff so perfectly, and so effectually prevents its return, as AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. In addition to the curative and restorative virtues peculiar to Ayer's Hair VIGOR it is a toilet luxury. The Hair is by far the cleanliest hair-dressing made. It causes the hair to grow thick and long, and keeps it always soft and glossy.

QUAKER
Is the Best
TABLE SAUCE.

Thousands of articles are now manufactured that in former years had to be imported, paying high import duty as it is now being done on Lea & Perrins table sauce; the QUAKER TABLE SAUCE takes its place; it has been pronounced by competent judges just as good and even better. The QUAKER SAUCE has slowly but surely gained great importance and is replacing the very best imported sauce on the shelf of the grocer, the tables of the restaurant and the tables of the rich and poor men, greatly prized and relished by all on account of its piquancy, aroma, taste, strength and purenees. The inventor has by years of study of the secret virtues contained in the aromatic spices of the Indies and China, such as mace, nutmeg, cinnamon, genuine Jamaica ginger, and peppers and buds of trees unknown to most men, and by long practice succeeded to combine their extracts in such a liquid form as we now find it, of agreeable taste, and so invigorating as to be taken in place of stomach bitters. By manufacturing this sauce here, heavy import duties and freights are saved, and it is sold at a lower figure to the dealer, who making a better profit on Quaker Sauce can sell it to the consumer cheaper than the very best imported article hardly equaling ours. If your grocer does not keep it, write us for prices, etc. Sold in bottles or by the gallon.

Keeping His Balance.

There is a story told among the Tartars, which has a moral for the civilized men of the present day. It is to this effect: Robo, cousin of the Great Mogul, was condemned to death for participation in a rebellion. The most skilful swordsman in the empire was provided for the execution, and the Great Mogul and his court were present as spectators.

The thin, keen blade flashed in the sunlight and desc ended upon the bar neck of Robo, who stood upright up to receive the stroke.

The executor's work w as so deftly, done that though the head was severed not a vital organ was disturbed. Robo remained standing.

"What, Robo, art thou not beheaded?" exclaimed the Great Mogul.

"My lord, I am," replied Robo, "stub as long as I keep my balance right, my head will not fall off."

TheGreatMogul was placated, a bandage was put on Robo's neck, and he recovered. He afterwards become a loyal subject and was made Cashier of the Empire, because, as the Great Mogul remarked—

"He knows that if he keeps his balance right, his head will not come off."

The Rise of Postage Stamps.

It is estimated that every year about 50, 000,000,000 letters are posted in the world. America leads, with adout 2,-500,000,000, and England follows with 700,000,000. Japan, which established a postal service only ten years ago, now mails annually 95,000,000 letters. Postage stamps are of a far more recent origin than many people imagine. Great Britain was the first country to issue them, and in 1840 a prepaid envelope made its appearance, designed by W. Musready. Prepaid letter sheets were issued about the same time, there being two denominations, one penny and two penny. Before that time postage was prepaid at the postoffice, or what was even more common, collected upon delivery. Now almost every country in the civilized world has adopted this method of prepaying postage. Strange as it may appear, Brazil, in 1843, was the first nation to follow Great Britain's example. It was not until 1847 that the United States began to use postage stamps, but several years prior to that time the postmasters at New York, St. Louis, Baltimore, New Haven, Providence and Brattleboro had issued stamps for their own convenience.

His Favorite.

"A lover for the animal kingdom is common to everybody," said a Sunday-school talker. "Some people love birds, others like dogs, horses, goats, etc., and it is quite proper that they should do so. I suppose every little boy and girl here loves some dumb creature beiter than all others. Don't you my little friends?"

All hands went up.

"That's right, and I am glad to see it. It shows that you have hearts full of love for the poor creatures who have not been blessed with reason and other precious gifts like yourselves. Now, to illustrate a point, I am going to ask some little boy to tell me what his favorite is among the domestic animals. Ah, thanks. This little boy shall answer. What do you like best, my little man. Speak up loud, so that all may hear you."

Boy (in tones that made the windows rattle and put the audience in an uproar)—"Roast Chicken!"

"No," said the pork butcher, "I am not in the habit of swearing, but when that boy come in and stole a string of grapes, I could not help exclaiming "dog-gone."

CONSUMPTION
is not incurable, if properly attended to.—At its commencement it is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the Lungs; then an inflamation, when the cough is rather dry, local fever, and the pulse more frequent, the cheeks flushed and chills more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflamation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration.
It heals the ulcerated surfaces and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and astringent articles, which are of so drying a nature as to be in great danger of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the CAUSE, consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well.
